the women peace and security WPS agenda is celebrated as a landmark global framework for achieving gender equality in peace and security governance. Its power is visible in two decades of United Nations resolutions, national action plans, regional initiatives, and countless activist, academic, and philanthropic projects. Yet, despite its vitality, it is haunted by failure as a lack of political will and stubborn patriarchal resistance frustrate its promise. This book offers a groundbreaking critical account of the WPS agenda, exploring its evolution in relation to the wider politics of global governance and feminism. Paul Kirby and Laura J. Shepherd argue that WPS is not a settled, cohesive policy but a field in flux, defined and disrupted by a growing number of national, supranational, subnational, and transnational agents who in turn act on an expanding catalogue of threats from climate change to homophobia. Challenging traditional boundaries of peace and security, Kirby and Shepherd reconceptualize WPS as a policy ecosystem tracing interaction and contestation around the agenda across levels from the UN Security Council to military alliances to feminist activists. They combine analysis of a vast dataset of policy documents with key informant interviews and close readings of diplomacy, statecraft, the politics of indigeneity, counterinsurgency, antimilitarism, human rights, and the arms trade. Across the first twenty years of WPS, far-reaching and incisive, Governing the Feminist Peace poses a provocative question: what if we abandoned the idea of the WPS agenda as a unified political project altogether?

Research Anthology on Emerging Technologies and Ethical Implications in Human Enhancement

Along with the introduction of technology in nearly every facet of human life comes the question of the ethical side of using technology to improve the human condition. Whether that be physically or mentally, the capabilities of human enhancement technologies have created a dual-sided approach to discussing human enhancement: the critical approach of attempting to reach human perfection and the ethics within that idea and the endless capabilities of technology that have greatly impacted the medical field. It is essential to discuss both aspects within these emerging technologies, whether as separate entities or as cohesive units ranging from disease detection and treatment to implants and prosthetics to robotics and genetic engineering. Human enhancement technologies are widespread and multi-purposed by going beyond the capabilities of human hands; these technologies have propelled modern medicine and healthcare to new levels that have allowed humans to face new treatments or assistive technologies not seen before. The research anthology on emerging technologies and ethical implications in human enhancement covers the primary technologies and tools being used in medicine and healthcare, along with discussions on the ethics of enhancing the human body. Topics covered include prosthetics and implants, robotics, human disorders, diseases and treatments, and smart technologies. Along with law and theory, this publication serves as a valuable reference work for doctors, medical professionals, researchers, students, professionals, and practitioners involved in fields that include ethics, medicine, computer science, robotics.

this collection explores the practical operation of the law in the area of litigation costs and funding and confronts the issue of how exposure to cost risks affects litigation strategy. It looks at the interaction of the relevant legal regime, regulatory framework, and disciplinary rules with the behaviour of litigants, courts, and legislatures. Examining subjects such as cost rules and funding arrangements, the book discusses a wide range of topics such as cost-shifting rules, funding, and mass tort litigation cost rules and third-party funding. TPf rules in specific areas such as intellectual property litigation, commercial arbitration, investment arbitration, the role of legal expense insurance arrangements, fee regulation, and professional ethics. The contributors include renowned scholars and experts in their respective fields and well-versed individuals in both civil procedure and the practice of litigation, arbitration, and finance. Together, they present a broad approach to the issues of costs, cost-shifting rules, and third-party funding. This volume adds to the existent literature in combining topics in law and practice and presents an analysis of the most recent developments in this fast-developing area.

Powers, inequalities and vulnerabilities

this research addresses the gap that is present in both missiology and family and youth ministry. Missiology does not focus on children and youth specifically, while this is the largest population in the developing world. On the other hand, family and youth ministry has a more pastoral than missional approach and not always taking cognisance of contexts like globalisation. Thus, the purpose of the book is to address the sometimes unintended and unnoticed influence of globalisation on the mission of the church with a specific focus on children, youth, and family. For this purpose, the international association for mission studies study group for children, youth, and families coming from different parts of the world decided to describe the powers, inequalities, and vulnerabilities of children, youth, and families in a globalised world from their specific contexts. Although the most prominent research methodology was critical literature studies, methods like autoethnographic and empirical methods were also used. No decisions were made on a specific method of research for this publication. This publication can be viewed as an interdisciplinary and intra-disciplinary because it deals with social sciences, anthropology, psychology, missiology, systematic theology, and practical theology.

Youth Ministry as Mission is ministering to youth like being a cross-cultural missionary. You d better believe it. The parallels between ministry within youth culture and global missions have long been touted by youth ministry experts. Yet few resources exist to help youth workers benefit practically from the insights of missiologists in youth ministry. As mission, Brian Hull and Patrick Mays fill this gap with an introduction to missiology missions practice and missionary witness tailored especially for a youth ministry context youth ministers will discover missiological language that describes realities they face regularly and activities of cross cultural missionaries that translate well into leaders within youth ministries hull and mays address issues such as understanding the relationship of the incarnation to ministering in youth culture translating stories and practicing storytelling as preparation for witnessing teaching for witness in a multi religious context youth ministry as mission will be a valuable guide for college and seminary students as well as a breath of fresh air to those already working in youth ministry hull and mays show us how missiology can help us see a way forward in youth ministry humbly discovering the mission of god right where we are where we too have been sent to become living translations of the gospel for young people brad m griffin senior director fuller youth institute author of 3 big questions that change every teenager with deferential scholarly humility hull and mays have written a book that insists on integration over invention dr dave rahn coauthor of disrupting teens with joy

Ministry of Justice: Responding to Human Rights Judgments: Report to the Joint Committee on Human Rights on the Government Response to Human Rights Judgments 2012-13 - Cm. 8727

this is the latest in a series of reports to the joint committee on human rights setting out the government’s position on the implementation of adverse human rights judgments from the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR) and the domestic courts. It covers the period 1 August 2012 to 31 July 2013. The main focus of this paper is on two particular types of human rights judgments: judgments of the ECHR in Strasbourg against the United Kingdom under the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR) and declarations of incompatibility by United Kingdom courts under section 4 of the Human Rights Act 1998. A feature of these judgments is that their implementation may require changes to legislation, policy, or practice or a combination thereof.

Country gender assessment of agriculture and the rural sector in Tonga

The objective of the assessment is to analyse the agriculture and rural sectors from a gender perspective at the macro-level policy, meso-level institutional and micro-level community and household levels. The assessment seeks to identify gender inequalities in access to critical productive resources, assets, services, and opportunities. The assessment looks at the priorities, needs, and constraints of both women and men in agricultural and rural communities and the gaps that exist in responding to these issues. It also provides recommendations and guidance to promote gender sensitivity in future programmes and projects and identifies possible partners for gender-related activities. This assessment is also intended to raise awareness about gender issues among policymakers, FAO officers, NGOs, and community-based organizations (CBOs) in Tonga. It provides background and gender-related information and can be used as a tool to mainstream gender perspectives in future policies, projects, and programmes in ways that empower rural women.

Freedom of Information a practical guide for UK journalists is written to inform, instruct and inspire journalists on the investigative possibilities offered by the Freedom of Information Act, covering exactly what the Act is, how to make FOI requests and how to use the Act to hold officials to account. Matt Burgess utilises expert opinions, relevant examples and best practice from journalists and investigators working with the Freedom of Information Act at all levels. The book is brimming with illuminating and relevant examples of the Freedom of Information Act being used by journalists alongside a range of helpful features including end of chapter lists of tips and learning points, sections addressing the different areas of FOI requests, text boxes on key thoughts and cases, interviews with leading contemporary journalists and figures working with FOI requests, supported by the online FOI directory foidirectory.co.uk. Freedom of Information a practical guide for UK journalists is a must read for all those training or working as journalists on this essential tool for investigating, researching and reporting.

Regulating the End of Life

2021-09-09

Regulating the End of Life is a collection of cutting edge chapters on assisted dying and euthanasia written by leading authors in the field, providing an overview of current regulation on assisted dying and euthanasia both in the UK and internationally. This book also addresses the associated debates on ethical, moral and rights issues. It considers whether just as there is a right to life, there should also be a right to death, especially in the context of unbearable human suffering. The unintended consequences of prohibitions on assisted dying and euthanasia are explored, and the argument put forward that knowing one can choose when and how one dies can be life extending rather than life limiting. Key critiques from feminist and disability studies are addressed. The overarching theme of the collection is that death is an embodied right which we should be entitled to exercise with appropriate safeguards as and when we choose. Making a novel contribution to the debate on assisted dying, this interdisciplinary book will appeal to those with relevant interests in law, socio legal studies, applied ethics, medical ethics, political philosophy and sociology.

Youth Ministry

2018-12-01

This book aims at contributing to the scientific and academic discourse as regards to the what and why of youth ministry. Too often youth ministry has been approached from a mainly practical point of view, almost asking how we keep young people off the streets. Its methodology has often not included the theological and theoretical presuppositions that lie behind this ministry. Previous scientific reflection has been determined by a one-dimensional and almost exclusive point of view. In comparison with existing literature, this book does not focus so much on the how of youth ministry. It innovates a different approach, the book challenges the existing exclusive approach and develops an inclusive congregational and missional understanding of and approach to youth ministry from a particular perspective on the understanding the main objectives of practical theology. The author endorses the so-called movement of what is supposed to be going on. He adds the outcome of an empirical round table discussion with some 16 leaders in this field. On the descriptive and interpretive movements within the subject field, what is going on and why is it going on. The book will form the standard for any new research with regard to youth ministry. The book’s contribution lies on the level of sound theological reasoning and argumentation supported by many scholars for an inclusive congregational understanding of ministry as an integral part of every congregation being missional in being and doing. Youth, children, adolescents and emerging adults are just as integral a part of every congregation within which they live and serve.

The responsibility to protect R2P is intended to provide an effective framework for responding to crimes of genocide, ethnic cleansing, war crimes and crimes against humanity. It is a response to the many conscious shocking cases where atrocities on the worst scale have occurred even during the post-1945 period when the United Nations was built to save us all from the scourge of genocide. The R2P concept accords to sovereign states and international institutions a responsibility to assist peoples who are at risk or experiencing the worst atrocities. R2P maintains that collective action should be taken by members of the United Nations to prevent or halt such gross violations of basic human rights. This handbook containing contributions from leading theorists and practitioners, including former foreign ministers and special advisors, examines the progress that has been made in the last 10 years. It also looks forward to likely developments in the next decade.

Maritime Interception and the Law of Naval Operations

This book analyzes the rise of China’s naval power and its possible strategic consequences from a wide variety of perspectives, technological, economic, and geostrategic, while employing a historical comparative approach throughout since naval development requires huge financial resources and mostly takes place within the context of transnational industrial partnerships. This study also consciously adopts an industry perspective. The systemic problems involved in warship production and the associated material, financial, technological, and political requirements currently remain overlooked aspects in the case of China. Drawing on first-hand working experience in the naval shipbuilding industry, the author provides transparent criteria for the evaluation of different naval technologies strategic value which other researchers can draw upon as a basis for further research in such diverse fields as international security studies, naval warfare studies, Chinese studies, and international relations.
