from a marxist perspective advancing beyond the schemas of discussion presented in current marxist literature the author offers an account of how the concept of ideology should be defined and what role it plays within historical materialism through a close reading of Karl Marx's relevant writings, this volume demonstrates that while there is no coherent single account of ideology in Marx's work, his materialist framework can be reconstructed in a defensible and non-deterministic way. The definition of ideology presented is then articulated through a close reading of Antonio Gramsci's prison notebooks. Efforts are also made to demonstrate that Gramsci's interpretation of historical materialism is indeed consistent and compatible with Marx's a systematic articulation of a theory of ideology that combines the works of Marx and Gramsci as well as adding elements of Pierre Bourdieu's social theory and William James's psychology. This volume will appeal to scholars of social and political theory with interests in political economy and Marxist thought. A rich intellectual tradition that offers archaeologists a way around many seemingly irresolvable theoretical oppositions, Marxism deserves a place in the philosophical and substantive debates in archaeology. This book applies Marxist theory to archaeology and advocates a dialectical and historical approach to the study of the past. Originally published by Academic Press in 1992, this edition features a new prologue by the author. Marxism has had an enormous impact on literary and cultural studies, and all those interested in the field need to be aware of its achievements. This collection presents the very best of recent Marxist literary criticism in one single volume. An international group of contributors provide an introduction to the development, current trends, and evolution of the subject. They include such notable Marxist critics as Tony Bennett, Terry Eagleton, Edward W. Said, Raymond Williams, and Fredric Jameson. A diverse range of subjects are analyzed, such as James Bond, Brecht, Jane Austen, and the modern history of the aesthetic. More than 25,000 people of African descent are living in Austria, one of the richest political economies in the world that is part and parcel of one of the strongest neo-imperialist blocks in the form of the European Union. second world war in Britain detailing the transition of individuals who had survived in the war or had taken part in the war effort to going back a civilian life in 1945 following the rise of the Labour party in Britain until 1964, Marxist historiographies is the first book to examine the ebb and flow of Marxist historiography from a global and cross-cultural perspective since the eighteenth century. Few schools of historical thought have exerted a more lasting impact than Marxism and this impact extends far beyond the Western world within which it is most commonly analysed. Edited by two highly respected authors in the field, this book deals with the effect of Marxism on historical writings not only in parts of Europe where it originated but also in countries and regions in Africa, Asia, North and South America, and the Middle East. Rather than presenting the chapters geographically, it is structured with respect to how Marxist influence was shown in the works of historians in a particular area. This title takes a dual approach to the subject: some chapters are national in scope addressing the Marxist impact on historical practices within a country, whereas others deal with the varied expressions of Marxist historiography throughout a wider region, taking a truly global perspective on this topic. Marxist historiographies demonstrates clearly the breadth and depth of Marxism's influence in historical writing throughout the world and is essential reading for all students of historiography.

During the mid-1980s, Latin American colonial studies came to be dominated by the various post-movements—post-structuralism, post-modernism, post-Marxism—characterized by their promotion of discursivity as the ultimate horizon of sociality. This volume confronts discourse theory and examples of its colonial application with an alternative Althusserian problematic that foregrounds modes of production and class struggle to which end it further promotes a view of colonial societies as split not along a horizontal geographic axis that offsets the new world against Europe but vertically through the opposition between dominant tributary feudal formations and their emergent capitalist equivalent. Its fundamental claim is that the radical-sounding rhetoric of the various post-movements far from energizing the politics of resistance to the forces of imperialism actually greases the mechanisms of finance capital
